Greg Oliver is a Senior Lawyer in the Family Law team.

Greg was admitted to practice in 2002 and has wide ranging experience working as a general practitioner in both country and suburban practice. He joined the Family Law team at Moores in November 2008. He was appointed Senior Lawyer in 2010 and Deputy Workgroup Leader in 2012.

Consistent with the policy of the family law team, Greg's goal is to set realistic expectations and guide clients through the often hostile separation landscape. In the last 12 months he has:

- had the conduct of a hotly contested and long running big money case achieving a favourable result for the client
- overseen the negotiation of a number of continuing relationship agreements involving the protection of high value assets
- negotiated and formalised a number of property and children's matters for client's from all walks of life.

Greg presents seminars on a range of family law topics in an engaging and informative manner. He has a wide range of connections in different industries to draw upon.

He is happily married with two primary school aged children. To relax Greg reads most things, enjoys hiking and getting out into the Australian bush.
